RANDALL MANUFACTURING RECOGNIZED AS A 2013 TOP GREEN PROVIDER FOR ITS GREEN INSULWALL®

Elmhurst, IL (June 17, 2013) For the second time, Food Logistics magazine named Randall Manufacturing as a Top Green Provider. Randall Manufacturing has been recognized by Food Logistics both for committing to sustainable leadership and for investing in innovative, Green products -the pioneering GREEN bulkheads, and now GREEN InsulWall®.

GREEN InsulWall – a modular, energy-efficient curtain wall system - is made from recycled insulation. It has superior R-value coupled with reusability and modularity. GREEN InsulWall meets the growing demand of organizations looking for advanced environmental solutions.

“Building managers, architects, 3PLs, and material handling partners are looking for products, such as GREEN InsulWall, which help reduce the escalating cost of energy and that are environmentally-friendly, said Fred Jevaney, Randall Manufacturing president. Developing products that save landfill waste, conserve energy, and provide our markets with a LEED-contributing product make our organization incredibly proud.”

The company’s commitment to sustainable operations and environmental leadership is reflected in its Positive Impact program. The three driving tenets of Positive Impact are 1) committing to conserve the Earth’s resources; 2) helping fight hunger in our community; and 3) supporting our nation’s workforce by manufacturing in the USA.

To commemorate this important distinction, Randall Manufacturing will be launching on June 24th, a blog series entitled “LEEDing Questions”. “I will be asking a variety of innovative design & build contractors a series of questions about today’s GREEN building trends and the products that they see shaping the future of GREEN buildings,” said Todd Jessup, warehouse Territory Manager at Randall Manufacturing. LEEDing Questions will be featured on the company’s warehouse blog page and social media channels.
